REPUBLICAN EMBLEM FOOLS COUNTRYMEN

THE Republicans will amend the new ballot law. They may be in doubt about police legislation and the Mayor's term and a few other small matters, but the ballot law is to be changed.

It appears from letters that have arrived at the Fifth avenue headquarters since election day that the party has lost a large number of votes through the rural voters mistaking the lower half of the Republican emblem for the vote-record.

The Republican emblem must by law have beneath it.

The Republican emblem is a rampant eagle perched on a ballot box, with a quilt pen in his mouth. The ballot box printed on the emblem is not a circle; it is a square, but it kers like a circle after the rural voter has been driven five or six miles passed taverns to the polling place.

In two election day, thirty voters put crosses in the real circle below. All of the ballots were declared defective and were thrown out. A how has some up all over the State at this waste Republican emblem for the vote-record.
